

Call for Application: Scholarship for Swiss NanoConvention

In August 2015, almost 100 students from all over Europe gathered in Basel to participate in the 9th edition of INASCON, an “International Nanoscience Student Conference” organized by students for students. INASCON provides an annual platform for young scientists to come together, discuss their research in the broad context of actual developments in nanosciences, expand their academic network and simply make new friends.

This year, nanosciences will return to Basel, when the Swiss NanoConvention will take place from June 30 to July 1. Scientists from all over the world will meet and discuss recent trends in academic research, as claimed by the organizers, “The Swiss NanoConvention is the prime showcase for nanotechnology in Switzerland, jointly organized by the «who-is-who» in the Swiss nano scene. It is the venue for meeting the great minds in nanoscience and -technology.” More information on the conference can be found here: <http://swissnanoconvention.ch/2016/>.

To continue the spirit of INASCON 2015 and to enable young researchers to take part in the exciting universe of nanosciences, the INASCON 2015 Organizing Committee invites young researchers to participate in this year’s Swiss NanoConvention. We thus offer three scholarships to Bachelor, Master or early PhD students from Europe (excluding Switzerland), who want to be part of this year’s prime meeting on nanosciences. Each scholarship covers

- a) Travel costs up to 500 EUR
- b) Accommodation for two nights in the Bildungszentrum 21 (<http://bildungszentrum21.ch>)
- c) Full board during your stay at the conference
- d) Attendance fee

All participants are asked to present their work with a poster.

To apply, please send a letter of motivation, your CV and a short abstract (300 words) about your research until April 10, 2016, to inascon2015@inascon.eu.